West Envoys Confer On Berlin Crisis

MOSCOW (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson today briefed the top Western Allied ambassadors on his second meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on the Berlin crisis.

Thompson's meeting with the British, French and West German envoys in Moscow corresponded to a similar briefing he held with them Jan. 3, one day after the American ambassador held his first "probe" of Soviet intentions on Berlin with Gromyko.

Thompson met for three hours Friday with Gromyko, but there still was no indication as to the substance of the meeting. He said only that they dealt with Berlin and that other meetings were expected.

Thus far, the tightest cloak of diplomatic secrecy has been pulled over the West's probing attempt.

The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia Thursday labeled the West's effort to see if there is a reasonable basis for negotiations with the Soviet Union over Berlin a "well-known Adenauer formula."

Comedian Ernie Kovacs killed in West Coast auto accident.

Finis written to the colorful career of the mustachioed, cigar-smoking funnyman who was just embarking on even greater heights in TV and movies.

Many in Lower Bucks recall Ernie's earlier days in nearby Trenton, where he was born 43 years ago Jan. 23, and later was a radio announcer with WTTM.

And threat of more tragedy in Peru.

All residents ordered removed from the Huaylas Canyon area where heavy rains heightened already-ominous fears of a repetition of Wednesday's disastrous avalanche. Officials estimate at least 3,800 killed in the disaster.

Locally, the outlook a bit brighter.

Sunny skies a cheerful greeting to Lower Bucks early risers today. Weatherman offering us a pleasant weekend, but hints the snow or rain may be upon us Monday.

President Kennedy gets a scoop.

Heavyweight champ Floyd Patterson told the President a big secret yesterday — the name of the challenger he will fight for the crown next June. Patterson called on the Chief Executive in connection with Big Brother Week.

The pros take over the spotlight in Los Angeles tomorrow with the East vs. the West in the NFL's Pro Bowl tussle. The experts are picking the West. We'll string along with Y.A. Tittle and our Eagles to carry the East to victory.

Another merger.

This time the Pennsylvania Railroad and New York Central combine into largest corporate union in U.S. history. It's OK if it benefits the nation's economy. But let's not curtail the services.

Ernie Kovacs Killed When Car Hits Pole

WEST LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UPI) Comedian Ernie Kovacs, returning home from a gay baby shower for the Milton Berles, was killed instantly today when his car skidded on a rain-slick street and smashed into a utility pole.

The 42-year-old TV-movie star, who loved fast foreign cars, lost control of his compact station wagon and spun over the curb, hitting the pole broadside. Police said they believed, because of the force of the impact, he was going fairly fast.

Ambulance attendants were unable to extricate the body from the wreck until a tow truck arrived with special equipment.

Find Cigar

When the battered car was removed all that remained in the wet, glass-spattered street was a pool of blood and a long black cigar, Kovacs' trademark.

Kovacs had left the home of director Billy Wilder at approximately 1:20 a.m. PST (4:20 a.m. EST) where he had attended the party with his wife, singer-comedienne Edie Adams.

He met his death at 1:30 a.m. Also attending the party were Kovacs' friends, the Dean Martins, Kirk Douglas, Lucille Ball and her new husband, Gary Morton, in addition to French star Yves Montand, actor Martin Gabel and a half-dozen other Hollywood couples.

The party was for the three-week-old boy that Berles and his wife, Ruth, adopted last New Year's Eve.

Upon learning of her husband's death Miss Adams collapsed. She was put under sedation by a doctor.

Friends Console Widow

Wilder, along with comedians and Kovacs' close friends—Jack Lemmon and Buddy Hackett, rushed to the widow's home and remained there through the morning.

"My God," Wilder said, "it's hard to believe."

"Ernie came late to the party. He had been working. Edie arrived in the small car, the Corvair station wagon, and when she (Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Police Merger Is No. 1 Item Monday Night

Public notice was given today by Lower Makefield Township that the proposed police merger plan with Morrisville will be the first item on the agenda before the Board of Supervisors at a meeting Monday night.

William H. Struwe, township manager, announced the agenda for Monday's meeting to be held in the township municipal building.

This notice complies with a motion passed Nov. 20, 1961, by the supervisors which said, "before any further action is taken on this matter public notice will be given."

Residents Demand Notice

At the same meeting, the supervisors had tabled the plan to merge the township's police department with that of Morrisville's. The motion to make a public announcement on any action on the matter was demanded by the large number of residents attending.

Earlier this week, a letter was sent by Struwe in behalf of the township supervisors to Morrisville Council, saying: "Because of public opposition the board of supervisors at this time is no longer interested in a consolidated police department."

"The board wants to express its thanks to you for your splendid cooperation in this ill-fated (Continued on Page 3, Col. 8)

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — When Wayne Pollari was arrested on a charge of passing bad checks, he tried to keep his name clear by telling police he was Lawrence Nettinger of Milwaukee. The ruse didn't work.

Police checked and discovered Nettinger had a record of 45 arrests. Pollari then admitted he had been using a friend's name.

Plain James Kennedy Enjoys Binge As VIP

LONDON (UPI)—The Kennedys of Massachusetts returned to normal today following a brief binge of VIP treatment from awed Londoners who thought they were kin to that man in the White House.

"It was all a mistake," said James P. Kennedy, "but it was fun while it lasted."

Kennedy, 37, and his wife, Ruth

Accordingly, they were somewhat startled last week when they arrived at London's airport on a visit to find the red carpet laid out. A porter met them at the plane, whisked them through customs without the usual luggage check and sped them by limousine to the exclusive Mayfair Hotel, where they had reservations.

On Route 1 Man Hit By Auto After Accident

A 25-year-old man suffered minor injuries early last night when he was struck by an auto as he stepped from his car on Route 1 in Middletown Township.

Treated for cuts and bruises of the forearm at Lower Bucks County Hospital and then released was Jay Feldman, 2643 Sperry St., Philadelphia.

He was struck by an auto driven by Walter B. Frederick, 53 of 304 Conly Ave., Langhorne, according to Middletown Township police.

Feldman was traveling towards

Philadelphia at about 6:20 p.m. when his auto was involved in a rear end collision with a car driven by Herbert D. Evans, 34 of 724 Tulip St., Croydon, police said.

As Feldman got out of his car to assess the damage to his vehicle, he was struck by Frederick's car, traveling in the opposite direction, police said.

Middletown Township police officer Stephen Ambrose, who investigated the accident, said no summons were issued. The Penn-del - Middletown Rescue Squad took Feldman to the hospital.

Navy Patrol Plane Missing

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—A U.S. Navy Neptune patrol plane was reported missing between Iceland and Greenland today with 12 men aboard.

A joint U.S.-Icelandic air and sea search was underway for the plane which took off from Keflavik, Iceland Friday morning on an ice patrol. Officials said it was last seen on radar when it was 270 miles northwest of Keflavik at 10:15 a.m. Friday.

Officials said a search was launched as soon as it became apparent the plane was missing. Icelandic coast guard vessels and aircraft joined the search within hours.

Fishing trawlers near Greenland also were alerted to watch for signs of the missing plane, they said.

Croydon Man Shot In Chest, $175 Taken

William Moser, 46, Croydon, night manager at the Bristol Motor Inn was seated in a swivel chair behind the desk this morning when he saw an old model Chevrolet pull into the parking lot outside about 1:50 a.m.

He saw two men get out of the car at the motor inn, Route 13 and Green Lane. They entered and approached his desk. They were both wearing jackets. One had a mustache.

A moment later, Moser was staring up at a pistol held by the man wearing the mustache. "This is a holdup," the bandit said.

Moser never moved, he later told police. "Help yourself," he said. The gunman held the pistol on Moser while his companion scooped about $175 in change and bills from the cash register.

Then the gunman fired. The bullet struck Moser in the left side of the chest spinning him around in the swivel chair. He fell to the floor.

The robbers fled. Moser, momentarily stunned, managed to reach the telephone on the counter and dial the operator.

Because he had been lying behind the counter, he did not see in which direction the two men fled.

Policeman Arrives

Moments later, a patrol car driven by Bristol Township Patrolman William Edmonds arrived.

Apparently he just missed the gunman. He was driving by the Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company at the time, less than half a mile from the motor inn on Green Lane.

Moser was taken to the Lower Bucks County Hospital. His condition this morning was listed as satisfactory.

Township Detective Charles Shaw said that luckily for Moser, the bullet struck his rib. The rib deflected the pellet, preventing it from entering a vital organ, the detective said.

Moser lives at 416 Neshaminy Road.

The Bristol Motor Inn was known as the Bristol Motel until last September when it has had its name changed.

RR Merger Is Opposed By Union

NEW YORK (UPI)—The proposed $5.5 billion merger of the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads—which would be the biggest corporate marriage ever—has been denounced as "catastrophic" by representatives of 23 railway labor unions.

The two giants of eastern rail transportation Friday announced plans to merge and form the nation's 11th largest corporation — unless barred by their stockholders or the federal government.

The Railway Labor Executives' Association, representing 24 railway labor organizations, reacted Friday night by labeling the plan "the most catastrophic proposal in its potential effects upon the future welfare of the nation and the railroad industry itself." The rail unions fear loss of jobs and members in a merger.

A merger would form a 20,000-mile rail network stretching from Boston-New York-Washington to Chicago and St. Louis, by far the largest system in the nation. Both lines now are running in the red, and a merger was expected to save upwards of $100 million a year in costs.

The merger application will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) "probably within 30 days."

Stockholder Approval Expected. Stockholder approval is expected at the lines' annual meetings in May. The new corporation would be named "Pennsylvania New York Central Transportation Co."

The biggest hurdles are expected to be needed approval by the ICC, which must judge if a merger is in the public interest, and possible tough anti-trust scrutiny by the Justice Department.

The Justice Department said in Washington it was "too early to tell" if its anti-trust division would take a hard look at the proposed merger.

The ICC, however, has looked with favor on four mergers—none approaching the size of the New York Central — Pennsylvania—in the past two years to help the financially troubled industry rise out of its red ink.

Yale & Towne Strike Board Is Proposed

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The city and state governments moved today to bring Yale & Towne Co. officials and union representatives back to the bargaining table and ease tension at the strike-bound north Philadelphia manufacturing plant.

Mayor Richardson Dilworth announced last night that he and Gov. David L. Lawrence had agreed to ask both principals in the 20-week strike to agree to a "citizens board of inquiry" to hear both sides and make non-binding recommendations.

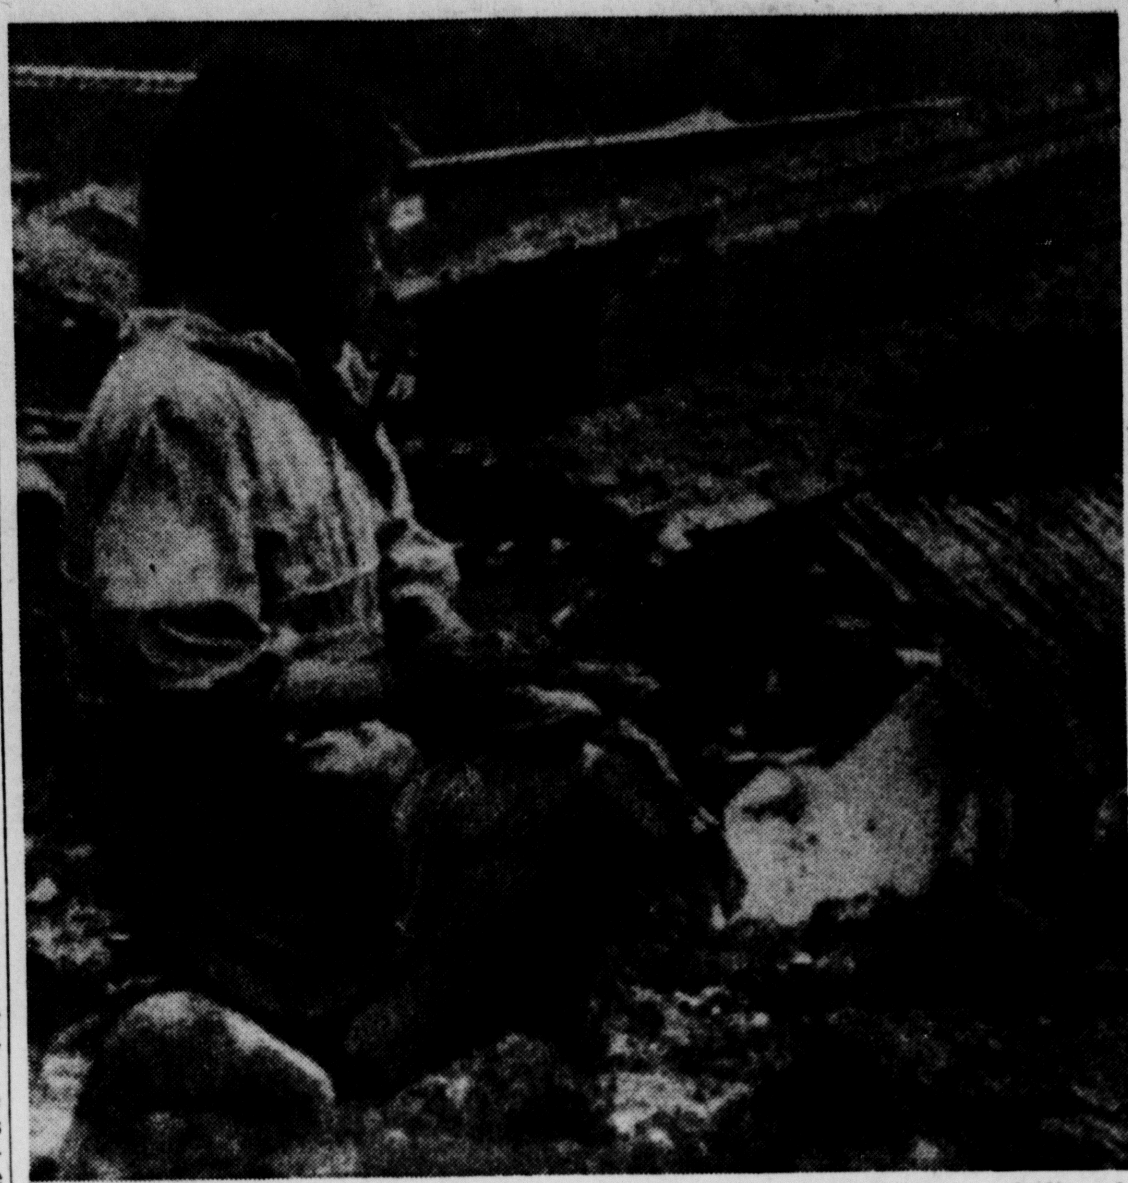

The mayor said city labor consultant Eli Rock had suggested the board as a means of bringing the principals together again.

Dilworth said Dr. Gaylord P. Harnwell, president of the University of Pennsylvania, Albert J. Nesbitt of the executive committee of the Greater Philadelphia Movement, and labor-management consultant Robert E. Worden would serve on the board if the company and the union okay the proposal.

Talks have broken off in the dispute and the company has begun hiring replacement workers for the 1,200 strikers. The union despite a court injunction against mass picketing, staged sizable demonstrations at the plant Thursday and Friday.

More than 200 of the replacement workers went to jobs at the plant Thursday and Friday as hundreds of policemen held the pickets to a stand-off with the exception of scuffling Thursday. No one was injured.

Rep. William J. Green, who is also city Democratic Chairman, asked Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg to intervene in the strike but Dilworth said Friday night that "this is our problem."

Peru's Death Toll Figured At Least 3,800

HUARAZ, Peru (UPI) — Provincial authorities today ordered the immediate removal of all residents from the Huaylas Canyon area, where heavy rains last night heightened already-ominous threats of a repetition of Wednesday's disastrous avalanche.

Officials feared that a thaw induced by the rains might send precariously poised masses of ice thundering down the slopes of towering Mt. Huascaran, where thousands of Peruvians perished Wednesday.

At one point of particular danger, an estimated 10,000 tons of water had accumulated in a dip in the ice, forming a lake with an extent of more than an acre.

Ice control chief Miguel E. Pizarro had stationed glacier watchers equipped with Fourth-of-July sparklers and blank pistols to warn hill dwellers of any shift in the ice masses.

Health Minister Eduardo Watson, who returned Friday night from a fact-finding tour of the area devastated by Wednesday's tragic snowslide, estimated that it took a toll of at least 3,800 lives and caused more than $1 million damage.

Watson said no one in the dozen settlements swept away by the avalanche escaped death. The 300-odd survivors were persons who were away from their homes for one reason or another when the slide — 6 million tons of snow, stone and mud — roared down the mountainside at mile-a-minute speed.

Watson told newsmen that 2,750 acres of farmland were wiped out by the avalanche.

Relief supplies were pouring into Huaraz, but authorities here said there is little need for them because so few residents of the disaster area survived.

The government proclaimed a state of emergency in Yungay Province, largely isolated by the slide, placing all police and other civil authorities under military control until the area is cleared.

An immediate problem confronting authorities was posed by the plight of the town of Yungay, whose 20,000 people were left without drinking water by the avalanche.

Efforts to reopen the road to Yungay were frustrated by a mass of mud too deep to be cleared away by bulldozers. Engineers estimated that it might be three weeks before the road could be reopened.

he claims, he sought to arrange peace talks between the feuding Congolese leaders. They said the Belgian-born Struelens at no time was a secret agent of the United States.

Struelens' claim that he sought to mediate the Congo dispute with State Department support came to light as the Senate internal security subcommittee called a closed hearing for Monday to hear the officials who dealt with the director.

Among them are Sheldon B. Vanece, director of central African affairs, and his deputy, Robert Eisenberg. Struelens may be called to testify publicly late in the week.

Registered As Agent

Struelens is a registered foreign agent. Last Sept. 26 the U.S. Immigration Service invalidated his visa. In recent weeks some U.S. officials have accused him of spreading misinformation about alleged brutality by U.N. troops in Katanga.

The United Nations, with strong U.S. backing, has been trying to end Katanga's secession from the central Congo government. The official U.N. view is that the Congo cannot grow strong without Katanga and its rich mineral resources.

The government sources who disputed Struelens' claim that he went to the Congo on a U.S.-supported peace mission said his dealings with the State Department began late in July. They gave this account:

have come too late. Three consecutive nights of sub-freezing weather already had ruined the unharvested citrus and vegetable crops in the Rio Grande Valley. It was estimated that at least $15 million was lost to farmers and laborers.

The damage to the citrus trees could not yet be assessed in money terms.

A low pressure area developing in the eastern slopes of the Rockies might expand into another major winter storm, the U.S. Weather Bureau cautioned. Meteorologists planning weekend trips in west and north Kansas, central and east Nebraska and Iowa were warned to check road conditions.

in town, were waiting on the doorstep.

"Are you Mr. Robert Kennedy?" asked one newsmen as flash bulbs popped.

"I told him, 'No, I'm Mr. James Kennedy,'" Kennedy related. "But right there I realized the mistake. I told them I was here with Raytheon to inspect a new plant and was not with the government, but they wouldn't believe me."

"They kept asking questions and looking at my wife and an Indian girl we met at Shannon Airport. I guess they thought it might be Jackie going on her trip to India."

Wife Resembled Jackie

A hotel official said the error was compounded by the fact that Mrs. Kennedy "might pass for Jackie when she puts her hat on."

Kennedy finally convinced the newsmen that it was all a mistake, but by then there was no stopping the hotel rumors. Maids and telephone operators catered to their every whim, and heads turned when they entered the hotel dining room.

"I heard the headwaiter tell the chef, 'Make it something special, that's the President's brother,'" Kennedy laughed.

The fun ended when the hotel manager, a personal friend of Southboro's Kennedy, told his staff the unromantic but true story.

"The waiter and everybody else seemed kind of disappointed to find out I'm just one of hundreds of other Kennedys in Massachusetts who aren't related to the President," Kennedy said.

Recalled To Army Duty Rev. McInnes Resigns As Pastor In Newtown

Rev. Thomas J. McInnes, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Newtown since May 1956 has been recalled to active duty in the U.S. Army.

An active reservist, Mr. McInnes left Thursday for Fort Slocum, New Rochelle, N. Y. where he is now attending chaplain's school. Upon completion of an eight-week orientation course he will report to Fort Belvoir, Va., where he will serve as chaplain at the 13th Field Hospital.

A native of Westfield, N. J., Rev. McInnes was graduated from Williamsville (N.Y.) High School, attended the University of Rochester, received a B.S. degree in chemistry from Houghton College, Houghton, N.J. and was graduated in 1957 from Eastern Baptist Seminary, Philadelphia.

Began Pastorate In '56

He began his pastorate at the Newtown Church while a senior at the seminary and was ordained at this charge the following year by the Rev. John Byette in charge of the Philadelphia Baptist Association and Dr. Edward Dalglish, professor of the Old Testament and Hebrew at Eastern Baptist Seminary.

A veteran of World War II, Rev. McInnes served as assistant chaplain at the Mitchell Air Force Base, Hempstead, L.I., during the Korean conflict. He was honorably discharged in May, 1952.

Married to the former Ruth Kaebnick, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Kaebnick of Warren, Pa., the couple live at the parsonage on N. State Street with their five children Tommy, Rebecca, Rachel, Ruth and Timothy. They plan to move to Virginia in the near future.

Bomb Hurlled Just In Time

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Negro father today hurled a live bomb found on his porch into the street in front of his home. The bomb, made up of three sticks of dynamite, exploded as it hit the pavement.

The family discovered the bomb on its porch when its dog began barking.

Walter Speedy, 42, told police he had been getting threats since he had bought a two-flat apartment in an all-white neighborhood. Speedy said he and his family still planned to move into the new apartment.

The attempted bombing occurred shortly after midnight today. When the dog began to bark, Mrs. Yvonne Speedy opened the door. On the porch she saw what she thought was a firecracker with a sputtering fuse. She called her husband.

When Speedy saw the bomb, he shouted for one of his children to bring a pail of water. Then he realized that the fuse had burned close to the point of explosion.

Speedy grabbed the bomb and threw it into the street where it blew up.

All the windows in the front of the four-flat apartment in which Speedy lived were shattered by the explosion.

Speedy said he bought a two-flat apartment in December. A bomb exploded there on Dec. 18.

Speedy has been promised police protection when he moves into the apartment in the all-white area. He said he has been getting threatening letters, which he probably will turn over to postal authorities.

venture. Morrisville Council early last November had approved the police merger by a 7-0 vote.

Other items on Monday's agenda include the appointment of the township Civil Defense chief, who will replace Claude L. Johnson, former supervisor who resigned, and the accepting of six new streets into the township.

Peter Campbell is chairman of the township supervisors, and filling out the three-man board are William Mackensen and Russell Carter.

Tax Returns Due Monday

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Monthly returns for November, 1961, from the state's four per cent sales and use tax are due Jan. 15, the state Tax Bureau announced Friday.

John P. Gray, bureau director, said that only 20,000 of the 225,000 tax collectors return the funds on a monthly basis. The remainder must submit their returns for the last quarter of 1961 by Jan. 31, Gray said.

Revenue obtained through the tax is earmarked for use within the state's education program.

Gremlins got into the new Bucks County administration building in Doylestown during this past week. The carillon began chiming out Christmas carols the other day at 7:30 a.m., apparently because of a power failure that hit Doylestown earlier. And a minor flood occurred on the sixth floor and dripped down to the fifth floor, the result of a bursting pipe.

They quick-freeze everything today, orange juice and blood plasma included, so it's only natural that frozen trees were played around the new courthouse amid freezing weather. The new gum trees so far stand straight and healthy.

It was rumored, and quickly denied by county building superintendent C. Wesley Ervin, that a half dozen pigeons are trapped in the court wing of the courthouse complex and can't get out alive. Even if pigeons were there they could get out, Ervin says, because not all the plate glass windows are in place. Meanwhile the pigeons have returned to roost near the administration building and menace the entrance.

There's no shortage of candidates for the May primary elections, when state committeemen and women are to be elected and candidates for congress and the state legislature nominated. State Democratic Chairman Morse had the Mulligans invited, which might throw some light on the outcome of Mulligan-Welsh contest for the party chairmanship.

Seven Killed In Collision

GROOM, Tex. (UPI) — A station wagon plowed into the rear of a large parked truck today and killed seven persons instantly. Two were critically injured.

Jack Morton, a highway patrolman who investigated the accident, said the driver of the car was Clayton Aldridge, 21, of Kennett, Mo. He said the other persons could not be immediately identified.

He said four adults and three children were killed. One middle-aged woman and a small child, about two years old, were taken to a hospital in critical condition.

Groom is a small town in the Texas Panhandle located just northeast of Amarillo.

On Monday Evening New School Directors To Hear Dr. Arnold

Newly elected school directors, presidents of Bucks County school Boards and their guests will meet Monday evening, at the Central Bucks Joint High School library. The evening's program will concern the responsibilities of school directors in the total educational programs of Bucks County schools.

Dr. George E. Raab, superintendent of schools, will explain the functions of the county board and county staff with a series of slides prepared to show these organizations and services; this will be followed by a film, "School Board in Action."

Educational Consultant

Dr. Arnold, dean of the School of Education, University of Pennsylvania, will address the theme, "How can a Board Member Render the Most Effective Service for our Boys and Girls?" Dr. Arnold has had extensive experience as an educational consultant, including advisory work for state departments of education of Ohio, Delaware, Pennsylvania, the U.S. Office of Education, and the Allied High Commission in Germany.

Co-author of "The Administration of Public Education," "Issues and Trends in School Finance," "Standards for School Buildings," and "Scorecards for the Evaluation of School Buildings," Dr. Arnold will stress the importance of the school board's role in view of mounting crisis and needs in education. He will also review the school board's legal responsibilities and the most effective procedures by which a school board member may render maximum service.

Panel Discussion

Following this presentation, Dr. Raab will moderate a panel discussion, "School Director Responsibilities." Members of the panel will include Fred Stackpole, president of the Bucks County Board of School Directors; Ralph McIntyre, president of Palisades Joint Board; Arnold, Charles Muschell, president of Bucks County Chief School Administrators; and George Taylor, superintendent of Council Rock Jointure and secretary of the Bucks County Chief School Administrators.

The Los Angeles coroner's office said Kovacs' body was almost unmarked and suffered no broken bones. Officials reported he apparently died of a basal skull fracture.

One of the first persons on the scene was a detective from the nearby Beverly Hilton Hotel, on Santa Monica Boulevard, who said the driver's side of the car crumbled into the comedian at impact.

An ambulance attendant said Kovacs was jammed inside the car with one leg under the seat. The car itself was slammed into the shape of a boomerang.

Kovacs was wearing sports clothes and a jacket with gold coins for buttons.

When notified by United Press International that her husband had been involved in an accident Miss Adams said she had left him only a few minutes earlier. Their Coldwater Canyon home is only a 10-minute drive from the Wilshire Tower apartment.
